The feedback from the tutor and the peer feedback was saying that the entire format of my initial report was wrong it was just an introductory paragraph divided into four sections so I have to change the entire report.

Abstract: from the feedbacks, I got to know that my abstract was a high-level introduction so I have to change that completely, so I added the context of the research area, the main idea under investigation, what is new in the approach, and what I am trying to prove, the method that I am trying to use and an expected outcome. And tried to correct the grammatical error as possible.

Introduction: as from the feedbacks I got to know that In the initial report, the introduction was spread across four sections, and the sentences were not coherent, and from peer feedback, I got to know that it is extremely difficult to understand, I have reduced the introduction to one section which was having relevant things to introduction such as introducing the topic, citing most relevant work and summarized the overall approach

Background: the feedback I received for the background was I was just listed irrelevant paper and explained them, so I changed that also completely by selecting the relevant literature for the research which will help in designing and implementing the required method and tried to explain the connection with the proposed research.

Methods: The method section was having a high-level introduction which I can have in the background or the introduction, and a nomenclature section, as from the feedback I got to know that the method section is not enough it was just a beginning of methods section, so I added the detailed proposed design including figures expanding the experimental design and analysis. Also added the mitigation strategies if the performance of the network is reduced.

References: from the feedback, it was saying that my formats and spacing of references was wrong I don't know how that happed I used the referencing section in the Microsoft word to add the in word citation and list at last and I selected Harvard referencing style. This time I double checked for the errors in the referencing
